Attitudes Toward Palliative Care Conceptions

INTRODUCTION. Pediatric palliative care is an interdisciplinary collaboration that seeks to improve the quality of life of all children with life-threatening conditions, as well as their families [].It focuses on prevention and relief of suffering, regardless of the stage of disease, and comprehensively addresses the physical, psychosocial, or spiritual needs of the child and family [].

The aim of the study was to describe nurses' experiences in caring for gravely ill and dying patients outside special palliative care settings.

Caring for dying patients outside special palliative care ...

1. Background. Caring for dying persons is an essential part of all nursing care. However, this is not an easy part of nursing because death and dying are topics often surrounded by silence and described as something that nurses do not talk about, either with the patient or with their colleagues (Dwyer, 2008, Dwyer et al., 2010, Österlind et al., 2011).

Old age refers to ages nearing or surpassing the life expectancy of human beings, and is thus the end of the human life cycle. Terms and euphemisms include old people, the elderly (worldwide usage), seniors (American usage), senior citizens (British and American usages), older adults (in the social sciences), and the elders (in many cultures—including the cultures of aboriginal people).

Aim. In this paper, I call into question the widely-held assumption of a single, more or less unified paradigm of 'qualitative research' whose methodologies share certain epistemological and ontological characteristics, and explore the implications of this position for judgements about the quality of research studies.

Cancer is a group of diseases involving abnormal cell growth with the potential to invade or spread to other parts of the body. These contrast with benign tumors, which do not spread. Possible signs and symptoms include a lump, abnormal bleeding, prolonged cough, unexplained weight loss and a change in bowel movements. While these symptoms may indicate cancer, they can also have other causes.

Attempted Suicide Alcohol and drugs also have a major influence on attempted suicides. In a survey sponsored by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in 1992, Deborah Dawson found that those who had frequently become inebriated were more likely to experience suicidal thoughts or to actually try to kill themselves.

In the present article, the issue of the burnout-depression overlap is first addressed from a theoretical viewpoint through an analysis of the way the added value of the burnout construct has been presented and justified so far (for an overview, see Table 1). In the second part of the paper, findings from empirical studies that examined the link between burnout and depression are synthesized ...
