Grammar To Go

Confusing Words: Come and Go. The common verbs come and go are often confusing. One reason this happens is that come and go have the same basic meaning, but are used for different directions.. Come is used to show movement toward or in the direction of the speaker or the person being spoken to:. My cousin is coming to see me next week.

VERB + PREPOSITION; Some verbs require a preposition to complete the meaning expressed by the subject and predicate. (He fell ____.) One of several options can complete the expression (e.g., down, over, upside-down, on the ground, under a bus, over a balcony). The meanings expressed by the verb and the preposition are literal— each word has a meaning.
